

DREXEL LIBERTY SCHOLARS PROGRAM

Drexel University has been providing quality education for over 130 years, regardless of religion, race, gender, or social class. The Drexel Liberty Scholars program continues this tradition while also reaffirming our commitment to diversity, inclusion, and social justice.

Through the Liberty Scholars program, Drexel provides 65 recent high school graduates from across the nation with an annually renewable scholarship that covers 100 percent of tuition and general fees. Additionally, Liberty Scholars receive the benefit of a dedicated faculty/staff mentor, a Living Learning Community, academic resources, and event programming.

See the back of this fact sheet for answers to some frequently asked questions about eligibility, the application process, and program requirements.

WHO IS ELIGIBLE?

U.S. citizens or permanent residents with demonstrated financial need are eligible to apply for the scholarship. Final determination of financial eligibility is made when Drexel receives the information provided on the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) and CSS Profile. Applicants must also be high school students who will graduate from a public, private, parochial, charter, or preparatory high school during the academic year. Applicants who were homeschooled or who completed a GED will be reviewed on a case-by-case basis.

To receive the scholarship, the candidate must apply to Drexel as a new matriculated, first-year college student in a full-time day, on-campus undergraduate program of study at the University starting in the fall 2024–2025 academic year.

HOW DO I APPLY FOR THE SCHOLARSHIP?

All candidates must complete the Common or Coalition Application, including the application fee or waiver, high school transcripts, two letters of recommendation, and any other required documents for your major, along with the Liberty Scholars application. To learn more, visit drexel.edu/undergrad/apply.

The Liberty Scholars application deadline is dependent on when you decide to apply. You can complete the Drexel Liberty Scholarship application and essay online via the Enrichment and Scholarship Application tab of Discover Drexel at discover.drexel.edu. Please Note: Emailed essays will NOT be accepted in substitution of the Liberty Scholars application.
