

Drexel University
Hahnemann Creative Arts in Therapy Program

This six-hour workshop will address a broad spectrum of interrelated components of trauma and its treatment via lecture, discussion, and experiential elements.

Revisioning Trauma & Transforming Therapeutic Approaches

Workshop by Sandy Sheller, MA, ATR-BC, LPC

Objectives

1. Increase your knowledge of what constitutes trauma and traumatic stress responses
2. Understand how trauma affects human development and functioning
3. Develop awareness of how organizational systems, institutions, and service providers are impacted by trauma and the trauma survivors they serve
4. Recognize the interrelationship between trauma-related behavioral and emotional reactions and commonly diagnosed mental and behavioral health disorders
5. Learn four trauma-informed interrelated components of healing
6. Engage in an exercise to expand your ability to use Creative Art Therapies in trauma specific treatment

August 14, 2009 from 9Am to 4Pm

Registration Fee: $160

Please respond by 8/7/09

Attention: Betty Hartzell at eah38@drexel.edu, 215-762-3767

CEU's : The Hahnemann Creative Arts in Therapy Program, Drexel University is recognized by the National Board of Certified Counselors (Provider #925) to offer continuing education credits for National Certified Counselors. We adhere to NBCC Continuing Education Guidelines.

*New College Building: 15th Street between Race and Vine Streets