Lecturer and Clinical Supervisor, University of Pennsylvania Law School, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, August 1999-June 2005.

Mediation Clinic: Taught and supervised in the Mediation Clinic, a course that focused on the skills, role, and ethical concerns involved in serving as a mediator. In the bi-weekly seminar, students received intensive skills training to prepare them for the fieldwork component of the course, in which they mediated small claims cases, private criminal complaints, child custody disputes, small claims appeals, and EEOC employment discrimination charges.

Civil Practice Clinic: Taught and supervised in the civil litigation clinic, a course in which students represented clients of the Penn Legal Assistance Office, a teaching pro bono law firm located at the Law School. In the bi-weekly seminar, students were trained in client interviewing and counseling, case development and planning, witness preparation, opening statements and closing arguments, direct and cross examination, jury selection, and negotiation. In the fieldwork component of the course, students represented clients in civil matters pending in State and Federal courts and administrative agencies.

Externships: Supervised student externs in their work-based placements at the Women's Law Project of Philadelphia and the Capital Habeas Corpus Unit of the Federal Court Division of the Defender Association of Philadelphia.

Public Interest Lawyering: Developed and taught, with other clinical faculty members, a pilot seminar in Public Interest Lawyering for upper level students that focused on issues that confront lawyers in the representation of low-income clients.
