

HOSPITALITY MANAGEMENT

Drexel University's Bachelor of Science in Hospitality Management offers a career-driven credential to help students step into the leadership of projects, programs, and staff in hospitality organizations across the country and around the world.

The BS in Hospitality Management builds on the four major strengths that are critical for success in the hospitality profession - innovative management, customer service, technology, and international perspectives. Students acquire a comprehensive body of knowledge through coursework that covers all functional areas of the industry. They are exposed to problem-solving techniques and encouraged to become independent thinkers who can motivate others to success.

The program allows for increased specialization with concentrations in one of four areas: Food and Beverage Management, Gaming and Resort Management, Hotel Management Administration, and Travel and Tourism.

Students wanting specific information about the major are encouraged to stop by the department office at 101 N. 33rd Street, call the department at 215.895.2411 or visit their website at drexel.edu/hsm.
