

INTERIOR DESIGN

Drexel's Interior Design Major Program offers exciting opportunities for the study of interior design within the multi-disciplinary learning environment of the Antoinette Westphal College of Media Arts & Design. Through academics grounded in problem-solving design studios, cooperative employment, and dedicated faculty, the interior design program prepares students for leadership positions in the interior design industry. Within the context of increasingly more complex design projects, the behavioral, technological, and aesthetic aspects of interior design are explored. Combined with Art & Art History and general education requirements, a core of interior design courses creates a unique education at the forefront of design. To prepare for increasingly international career options, students may choose to participate in the Drexel in London Program or other study abroad options.

Employers Who Have Hired Drexel Students Include:
Design East, Inc. Eimer Design EwingCole Floss Barber Fury Design, Inc. HOK International Nelson Stantec University of Pennsylvania

The undergraduate interior design program is accredited by the Council for Interior Design Accreditation, CIDA, formerly known as FIDER.

Students seeking to enter the interior design industry should know that experience in any of the related fields – residential, hospitality, and corporate – is valuable, no matter what your career path. The design elements of your resume, work samples, and portfolio are pivotal in an interior design job search, so project work is of vital importance.

Students wanting specific information about the major are encouraged to stop by the department office in the URBN Center at 3501 Market Street, or visit their website at drexel.edu/westphal.
