

POLITICAL SCIENCE

We offer BA and BS programs in political science.

The study of political science looks at the world we live in today through examination of the political, social, and economic systems that govern society.

Political science is also central to the classical study of liberal arts, with roots in ancient civilization and philosophy. Introductory courses in political science expose students to the particular approaches and subject matter of the five recognized branches of the discipline.

Whether preparing to enter law school, government, the business world, or graduate school, students can shape a curriculum that meets their needs.

The Bachelor of Arts program provides a more flexible course of study, which includes a foreign-language requirement, and allows for options in the fulfillment of humanities, social science, math, and science requirements.

The Bachelor of Science program provides a framework for those students who prefer a more specific course plan of study, including required sequences in both mathematics and the natural sciences, as well as courses in economics and statistics.

Students wanting specific information about the major are encouraged to stop by the department office in 3250-60 Chestnut Street, call the department at 215.895.2463, or visit their website at drexel.edu/coas/histpol.
