

OPERATIONS AND SUPPLY CHAIN MANAGEMENT

The operations and supply chain management (OSCM) major stresses a thorough knowledge of the rapidly accumulating analytical techniques in systems analysis, in addition to a full appreciation of all other phases of business operations.

Drexel's program stresses ways to analyze systems performance within organizations as well as organizational behavior, planning and control of operations. Topics include the design, planning, control and assessment of production, service operations, quality management and supply chain management. With the proper choice of electives, this major may also prepare students for graduate studies in industrial management, industrial engineering, management science, or operations research.

Students who want specific information about the OSCM major are encouraged to stop by the department office in Gerri C. LeBow Hall, call the department at 215.895.3767, or visit the department's website at lebow.drexel.edu/academics/undergraduate/areas-of-study/operations-management.
