FAQs

When can I go?
In general, Drexel sponsored programs are available to students with sophomore standing and above. Determining a specific term depends on factors such as major, co-op cycle, and language requirement. Some majors have pre-designated terms for study abroad. Speak with your academic advisor to determine the term that best fits in your curriculum sequence.

How much will it cost?
Students attending a Drexel-sponsored program will pay the same tuition and fees as normal. Some programs have additional fees to cover costs of housing, transportation, insurance, etc. In addition, students are responsible for costs such as: roundtrip airfare, food, living expenses, local transportation, travel, and entertainment. Cost of living depends on location of program.

When is the application due?
Deadlines vary by program. Typically, the deadlines for each quarter are the following:
- Fall: February 1
- Winter: September 1
- Spring: September 1
- Summer: March 1 (priority deadline Jan. 15)

How will this affect my co-op?
It depends on the program. Some programs require students to start co-op late or end co-op early. Also, some programs are only offered during one term. If you are scheduled for co-op during that term, your co-op coordinator can work with you to switch your cycle in order to participate.
