

Humanities and Social Sciences Fellowship Policies

Humanities and Social Sciences Fellows are required to work a minimum of 20 hours a week for a minimum of 10 weeks in the Summer term 2016-17 according to the requirements set by their faculty mentors.

Humanities and Social Sciences Fellows are required to complete time sheets for each week of work.

There is no requirement or expectation for Humanities Fellows to be enrolled in classes during the term in which they hold the fellowship.

Humanities and Social Sciences Fellows may not be enrolled for more than 12 credits of regular coursework during the term in which they hold the fellowship. If the fellow would like, he/she can be enrolled in a 3-credit independent study with the mentor in conjunction with their project during or after their fellowship. The application for such an independent study will follow the guidelines of the Department in which it will be conducted. The Humanities Fellowship Program is not responsible for the cost of tuition for this (or any other) course.

Humanities and Social Sciences Fellows may be on Coop while holding their fellowship, but such a coop may not involve more than 20 hours a week of work.

Humanities and Social Sciences Fellows are required to present their project to faculty and students during the 2016-2017 academic year. This requirement can be satisfied in a variety of ways, including: publication, participation in a professional society poster day, and participation in a forum at Drexel University.

Humanities and Social Sciences Fellows may be asked to participate in a variety of social and research-related programs throughout the summer and after completion of the Fellowship.

Humanities and Social Sciences Fellows are encouraged to continue their research efforts in working with their faculty mentor after the fellowship is concluded through one of the following means: work study, independent study, the research coop program, and CoAS and University and CoAS and University Research Day projects.
