

Eating Disorder Psychologist at the WELL Clinic

The WELL Clinic at the Center for Weight, Eating, and Lifestyle Science at Drexel University is hiring a licensed clinical psychologist to maintain a caseload of clients seeking eating disorder treatment. This position is hourly and paid through a fee-sharing arrangement. The caseload expectation is 5 to 30 client hours per week. Timely completion of case-management responsibilities (including documentation and multidisciplinary consultations) is expected. Regular communication with clinic staff, including the Clinic Director, is also expected. All clinical services are currently being provided via telehealth. When in-person services return to the clinic location (32nd and Chestnut), clinicians will have the option of providing clinical services in person.

Qualifications: Doctoral degree in Clinical Psychology (PhD or PsyD) and full licensure in the state of Pennsylvania; Prior clinical experience working with eating disorders.

The WELL Center is an interdisciplinary clinical research center, which develops, tests and disseminates new behavioral and technological solutions to the problems of obesity, poor diet, sedentary behavior, and disordered eating. In 2020, the Center housed 30 faculty, staff, fellows and students, and over 20 grant-funded projects valued at $15M. Faculty at the WELL Center (all of whom have been successful at attracting federal and foundation funding, and generating high-impact scientific scholarship) take a team science approach to research, and thus, advise each other, co-write grant proposals and manuscripts, and serve as co-investigators on each other's projects. The WELL Center has a superior research infrastructure and an overall excellent scientific environment. Incoming faculty are well-positioned for success, in terms of scholarship, scientific impact and extramural funding.
