

BECOME A PUBLIC HEALTH PRECEPTOR

The Dornsife School of Public Health partners with community organizations to build the future public health workforce and support our students' preparedness to improve population health.

Serving as a preceptor provides students with invaluable opportunities to integrate their classroom learning with hands-on experiences while widening the scope of their professional networks as they embark on meaningful careers in the field of public health.

ARE YOU INTERESTED?

Sign up for Dragon Network to be contacted by a student directly through Drexel's virtual professional development community for alumni and students.

You can also contact Tariem Burroughs, MEd, MSODL, MA, director of Experiential Learning and Career Services, at DSPHstudentprojects@drexel.edu to express your interest and learn more.

HOW CAN I JOIN THE COMMUNITY?

- 1 Visit dragonnetwork.drexel.edu and select "Join Our Community"
- 2 Register using your LinkedIn account or your email address
- 3 On the "Topic of Interest" step, select "Serving as a preceptor for Dornsife School of Public Health students" to let students know that they can reach out to you for help. If you are already a member of Dragon Network, you can update this section of your profile.
- 4 Students will reach out directly to start a conversation. You are also encouraged to use Dragon Network to make new connections and build your own network!

ABOUT DRAGON NETWORK

Dragon Network is Drexel University's virtual professional development community for alumni and students. This free and easy-to-use platform facilitates career-focused conversations, provides opportunities to ask questions, share resources, and unites Dragons from around the world — one connection at a time. Dragon Network is open to all alumni and students.
