Innovative Curriculum

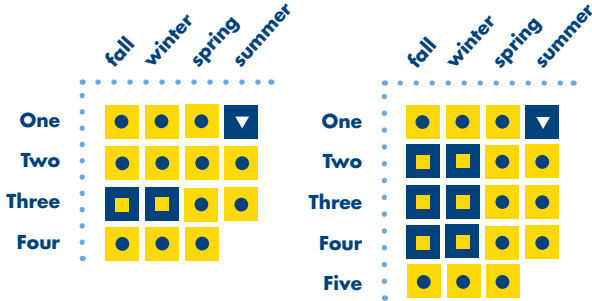

As an R-1 research institution, academics at Drexel are presented by world-class faculty who are experts in their fields. We have a rich history of research and innovation, promoting student curiosity and the development of new knowledge. With over 80 majors and as many minors, no two students experience Drexel the same way. Many of our students begin graduate-level research as early as their first year, gaining valuable experience and insights working with their peers and mentors right away.

Our combination of world-class education and real-world experience is unparalleled. Drexel's cooperative education program, also known as co-op, enables students to test-drive careers through up to 18 months of work experience before they even graduate. When students come back to the classroom, they return with enhanced knowledge and professional perspectives that they can share with the rest of the Drexel community. International students are able to fully participate in the co-op program and gain work experience in both the U.S. and around the world.

Our Community

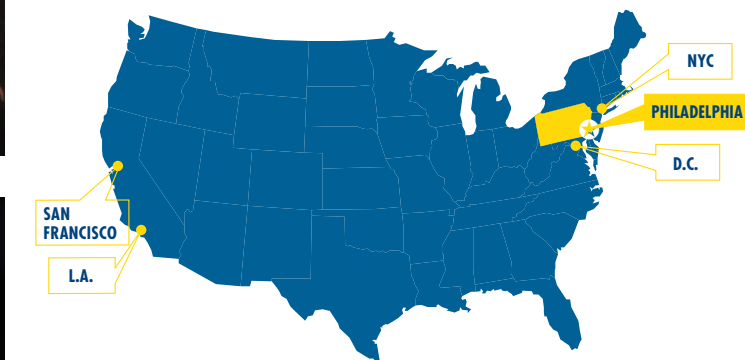

Drexel was founded over 125 years ago in Philadelphia, PA, one of the largest cities in the U.S. and the nation's only World Heritage City. Our location in the heart of Philadelphia gives our students the advantage of pursuing an innovative education in a city that offers students numerous cultural, historical, and social opportunities. As a result, our students are strongly connected with the surrounding community through many service opportunities as well as community-based learning courses.

Philadelphia, located in the heart of the northeastern United States, offers close proximity and strong ties to New York City and Washington, D.C., enabling students to easily explore different American cities and expand their professional networks.

Drexel has a thriving student life, with the opportunity to be involved in over 350 clubs and organizations, including more than 70 cultural and religious organizations, 18 Division I sports teams, and many academic and professional organizations. We also have ten residence halls for students to live in, and our College Learning Communities help them build closer connections and relationships with other students in their major.

Drexel is also committed to becoming the most civically engaged university in the nation. We have thriving partnerships with philanthropic organizations on local, national, and international levels. Our students come from many diverse backgrounds and places around the world and each contributes a unique piece to our welcoming and inclusive community.
