

KLING SCHOOL OF LAW

GRADUATE STUDIES

As the first law school founded by a major research university in the past 30 years, the Kline School of Law combines the strengths and diversity of Drexel University's work in engineering, science, business, and health care with a rigorous legal curriculum and immersive professional opportunities.

Taking advantage of its location within a rich legal community in the city of Philadelphia, law students engage with practicing lawyers through cooperative education and pro bono programs, as well as a variety of experiential learning opportunities in a vast range of practical settings.

Through collaboration, personalization, and flexible program lengths, Kline students receive an exceptional academic experience as they learn from world-class faculty who are accomplished law practitioners. Students then graduate from Kline ready to address the unique legal challenges of the future. The next generation of leadership begins here.
