

Tips for Online Student Success: Resources & Study Tools

Check out the following to see if they are useful to you.

These are suggestions only, but you may find them useful.

Note: Drexel IT does not support third-party tools.

Scheduling	Resources & Study Tools	More Study Tools
Outlook calendar: Part of the Drexel Microsoft O365 Suite	Drexel Libraries: First stop for research questions & support—note the online chat on right	EndNote: Reference management tool available via Drexel IT secure software site
Trello: Board-based project management app	Drexel Libraries Research Support: Note research data management tools	Zotero: Reference management & more! “Free, easy-to-use tool to help you collect, organize, annotate, cite, and share research”
Notion: Project Management app [different options than Trello or Asana]	Drexel Libraries: borrow from other libraries	OneNote: Note-taking and storing. Part of Drexel’s Microsoft O365 Suite
Action Priority Matrix: Planner to prioritize tasks, obligations & project elements. Like Stephen Covey’s Important & Urgent/Important & Non-Urgent/Un-Important & Urgent/Not Important & Not Urgent template	ALLY:  Embedded in Bb L, provides multiple alternate formats (audio, electronic braille, Beeline Reader) of the same course materials	Manchester University’s Academic Phrasebank: “[E]xamples of some of the phraseological ‘nuts and bolts’ of writing organised according to the main sections of a research paper or dissertation”
Time Management	Drexel Writing Center: Graduate Writing Consultants	Genius Scan: Mobile scanning app
FocusKeeper: Based on the “Pomodoro Technique” 25 mins on & 5 min break	Connectedpapers.com: Explore journal articles in a visual graphic & connect the dots among research (Free version)	Canva: Simple graphics creation tool (free version) for flowcharts, infographics, etc.
Todoist: Web-based “to do” app Wang, Yanyan, and Wanhe Li. “The impostor phenomenon among doctoral students: a scoping review.” Frontiers in psychology vol. 14 1233434. 2 Oct. 2023, doi:10.3389/fpsyg.2023.1233434	Research Rabbit: Like Spotify for journal articles; will recommend new articles that align with your interests	Biorender: Create scientific graphics (free version)
	BrowZine: Store & read journal articles on your phone or tablet; interfaces with EndNote	