You have a tax-efficient way to manage health expenses.

Healthcare expenses can be among the largest costs you'll face in retirement, with the potential to absorb a significant portion of your budget. And Medicare may not cover everything you need.

Your employer established a Retirement Healthcare Plan (RHP), a highly tax-efficient way for you to manage health expenses in retirement.

Once you've separated from service and are vested, you can use the accumulation in your RHP to get reimbursed—tax-free—for qualified medical expenses (QMEs) you and your spouse and eligible dependents incur on an ongoing basis.

Your Retirement Healthcare Plan offers a triple tax-free benefit.

- 1. Tax-free employer contributions: Contributions made by your employer while you were working are not taxed, enhancing your savings.
- 2. Tax-free investment earnings: The money in your RHP can grow tax-free, allowing you to potentially increase your savings over time without tax implications.
- 3. Tax-free reimbursement: When you withdraw funds for qualified medical expenses, those withdrawals are also tax-free, helping you manage healthcare costs effectively.

Find out what qualifies for reimbursement under the RHP.

You can be reimbursed for a wide range of out-of-pocket health expenses and QMEs not paid by insurance, including reimbursement of already-paid premiums for Medicare and other health insurance (such as long-term care insurance). Here are some examples of reimbursable expenses:

Insurance premiums	Other expenses
 Medicare Supplement or Medicare Advantage premiums Medicare Parts B and D premiums Prescription drug plans Dental and vision plans Long-term care plans Pre-65 retiree medical plans Other post-65 insurance premiums COBRA premiums 	 Office visit copays Prescription drug copays Medical cost shares (deductibles, copays, coinsurance) Dental, vision and hearing care Medical equipment not covered by insurance

Visit irs.gov/publications/p502 to see a complete list of QMEs.

Additional coverage for out-of-pocket expenses

There are deductibles, coinsurance and copayments that Medicare and Medicare Supplement don't cover.

The reimbursement benefit helps you cover your out-of-pocket costs for qualified medical expenses both routine and unexpected.

When does my eligibility begin?

If you've separated from service with your employer who sponsors the RHP and have fulfilled the vesting requirements for the plan, you become entitled to benefits. At this time, TIAA will send you an entitlement notification.

Claims activation

When you're ready to access and make use of the RHP account balance for reimbursement of QMEs, complete and submit a Claims Activation Form, available at tiaa.org. You may also request a hard copy of the form by calling 877-554-1004 and selecting option 1.

Within 7 to 10 business days of our receipt of the completed Claims Activation Form, you'll receive a package from the third-party claims administrator, Optum Financial. This package will include a healthcare payment card as well as instructions on how to file claims for reimbursement of QMEs.

Note: Only the vested account balance is eligible to be used for reimbursement.

Who can submit claims for the reimbursement benefit?

While you're alive, either the account holder or spouse may submit claims. An additional debit card for your spouse can be ordered for your convenience.

After your death, your surviving spouse or eligible dependents may submit claims from your account.

The TIAA healthcare payment card provides easy access to your funds.

The TIAA healthcare payment card offers you a convenient way to pay for expenses and allows you immediate access to healthcare funds. Rather than paying out of pocket for eligible expenses, filing a claim and then waiting for reimbursement, using the card will allow you to access funds directly and pay the provider at the point of purchase. While you still need to submit receipts to substantiate purchases, you won't have to wait for money to be reimbursed to you.

The healthcare payment card is issued by Optum Financial and programmed to work only at merchant locations designated as healthcare merchants based on their merchant category code (MCC). Examples of qualified merchants include doctors' offices, pharmacies and hospitals. The card should only be used to pay for eligible medical expenses, and you should always save your receipts. You won't be able to use your card at locations not approved healthcare merchants, nor is the card able to be used to pay insurance premiums. An alternative to using the TIAA healthcare payment card is to pay out of pocket then submit a request for reimbursement.

Important to know

Before using the card, you must transfer assets into the Nuveen Money Market Fund.

If there aren't enough funds, the transaction may be denied or partially approved, requiring you to pay the difference with another form of payment.

If you prefer not to use the TIAA healthcare payment card, you'll pay out of pocket then submit a request for reimbursement.

You may make fund transfers among investment options at any time in amounts of $1,000 or more (or the full value of the account if less than $1,000).

Note: Claims are paid only from assets invested in the Nuveen Money Market Fund. The Nuveen Money Market Mutual Fund provides relative stability in your available account balance to ensure sufficient funds are maintained throughout the reimbursement process.

General FAQs

What is a Retirement Healthcare Plan (RHP)?

An RHP is an employer-sponsored, tax-exempt medical benefit plan through which you can get reimbursed tax-free for your eligible out-of-pocket medical or dental expenses (i.e., expenses not paid for by insurance or any other benefit plan). RHPs operate under specific provisions of the Internal Revenue Code (IRC) and reimburse for qualified medical expenses incurred by you, your spouse or domestic partner, and other eligible dependents.

How does the plan work?

While employed, eligible employees received ongoing contributions to the RHP on a pre-tax basis. Reimbursements for qualified medical expenses after retirement are also tax-free. As a Defined Contribution plan, the only funds available in the RHP are the contributions made while employed and any investment returns on those contributions. Once the funds in the RHP are exhausted, you'll no longer be reimbursed for eligible healthcare expenses.

When am I eligible to start using the funds in the RHP to reimburse my eligible medical expenses?

You may start using your RHP funds once you've retired or separated from service from your employer and met the plan's vesting requirement.

How will eligible medical expenses be reimbursed?

The RHP claims administration is provided by Optum Financial. Once you're claims eligible, claims can be paid using a provided healthcare payment card, and any receipts can be submitted by mobile phone, fax, email or online.

How are the funds in the RHP invested?

Contributions made by your employer are invested in a Nuveen Lifecycle Mutual Fund that has a date closest to the year you turned (or will turn) age 65. You may also self-direct how your RHP account is invested by selecting your own portfolio based on the investment options available.

Is the RHP an annual "use it or lose it?"

No, your RHP account balance carries over from year to year.

What if I die before using the balance in my RHP? Will my survivors be able to use the funds in the RHP account?

If you die with funds remaining in your RHP account, your surviving spouse or domestic partner and other eligible dependents may continue to use funds for eligible medical expenses. If you die and have no eligible survivors, the remaining funds would be forfeited. The executor of your estate may spend down any remaining funds for any unreimbursed medical claims incurred prior to your death.

If I leave my employer, can I roll my RHP balance into another RHP or another qualified retirement plan?

No. The funds in your RHP account must remain in your employer's plan and are only accessible for reimbursement of QMEs after your meet the plan's claims eligibility requirements.

Can I submit a reimbursement request for health plan premiums in advance?

Yes, you can be reimbursed for prepaying insurance premiums up to 12 months in advance. You'll need to submit an insurance statement that specifies your contracted premium amount for the year or for the defined coverage period for which you're requesting reimbursement. Along with your insurance statement, you must submit proof you have prepaid premiums to the insurance carrier.

Can I set up recurring reimbursements?

Yes, you can request recurring monthly reimbursements for insurance premiums through the claims portal, eliminating the need to submit reimbursement each month for the same expense. You must submit supporting documentation that clearly displays a start date and end date for the specific premium. Examples of acceptable supporting documentation for recurring claims include but are not limited to Medicare award letters and carrier enrollment confirmation statements. Premiums will automatically be reimbursed at the beginning of each month for the prior month's coverage.

Is there a limit to the amount for which I can be reimbursed?

Yes, you can be reimbursed for QMEs up to the full balance your account. Reimbursements are processed from the available account balance in the Nuveen Money Market Mutual Fund. If a claim exceeds that balance, you may need to transfer funds from your Nuveen Lifecycle Mutual Fund to the Nuveen Money Market Mutual Fund to ensure your reimbursement is processed. You can transfer funds online at tiaa.org, through the TIAA app or by calling 877-554-2004, Monday to Friday, 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. (ET).

How long does it take for funds to transfer to the Nuveen Money Market Mutual Fund?

Transfers are processed as of the close of business on the New York Stock Exchange, which is usually 4 p.m. (ET) Monday to Friday. Transfer requests received after close of business are processed as of the close of the next business day.

Can I continue to use my account if I return to work?

It depends on where you return to work. An Affordable Care Act (ACA) mandate provides that active account holders and any eligible dependents can't use the reimbursement benefit while employed in any capacity at the institution sponsoring this plan. This includes retirees rehired on a part-time or by-appointment basis. If you're rehired, your benefit entitlement and claims access will be suspended. Only when you are not employed by the institution can you and your eligible dependents use the reimbursement benefit.

The ACA mandate only applies if you are rehired by the institution that sponsored this plan. You may work anywhere else and utilize all of the benefits.

Are reimbursement payments sent via a check or directly deposited into my bank account?

Reimbursement payments are mailed to your address on record unless you have requested they be deposited directly into your checking or savings account. Direct deposit can be set up through Optum Financial's website and mobile app. Payment can only be mailed to a U.S. address or directly deposited into a U.S. bank account.

What if I incur a medical expense outside the United States?

Claims for medical expenses incurred outside the United States are eligible for reimbursement provided they are translated to English prior to submission and are submitted in English.

Payment can only be mailed to a U.S. address or directly deposited into a U.S. bank account.
