

Acc. #2000.12
Longshore Collection
Inventory

- .1: Philadelphia Historical Pageant, Book of the Words, October 7th to 12th, 1912; This is a script for the pageant, which apparently was a re-enactment of moments from colonial history; 54 pages
- .2: program for the 46th annual convention of the Pennsylvania Woman Suffrage Association, in Scranton, PA, November 1914; 12 pages
- .3: program for the 32nd annual convention of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, in Washington, D.C., February, 1900; 10 pages; Lucretia Blankenburg was the President of Pennsylvania's Association and gave an address at this event.
- .4: pamphlet: "Call to the Forty-Sixth State Suffrage Convention", c. 1915; 4 pages
- .5: program; "Celebration of the Eightieth Birthday of Susan B. Anthony ", 1900
- .6: memorial booklet for Rudolph Blankenburg, b. 1843, d. 1918; this is an excerpt from the National Cyclopedia of American Biography; 12 pages
- .7: issue of The Medical and Surgical Reporter, A Weekly Journal, Vol.29, No. 15, October 11, 1873; there is a marriage announcement on page 270 that notes the marriage of Hannah Longshore's son, Channing Longshore to S. Maria Pierce
- .8: manuscript; handwritten autobiography of Thomas Ellwood Longshore, Hannah Longshore's husband, 1897; 22 pages
- .9: manuscript; handwritten addition to Thomas Longshore autobiography which he titled "An Appendix", n.d.; 12 pages
- .10: manuscript; handwritten poem titled "Farewell to Home", signed T.E. Longshore, but with the notation, "Copied from E. L. Burgess' album written about 1840"
- .11: published article by "T.E.L." (Thomas Ellwood Longshore) titled "The Christ' Interpreted", 1884
- .12: inaugural ball dance card/program with attached pencil; it is likely that this was for the inaugural mayoral ball for Rudolph Blankenburg; n.d.
- .13: envelope containing a piece of fabric from the wedding dress of Hannah Longshore's mother, Pauline Iden (?) Myers; c. 1810

- .14: lecture ticket for Practical Anatomy at Penn Medical College; Hannah Longshore taught practical anatomy there in 1853, one year after her graduation from the Female Medical College of Pennsylvania; 1853
- .15: booklet: "Pioneer in the Cause for Women: Hannah E. Longshore, M.D."; this is a biographical piece created by The Memorial Committee for The Hannah Longshore Department of Therapeutics of the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania, a fundraising group, n.d.
- .16: typed manuscript of text for the "Pioneer in the Cause for Women" booklet, n.d.
- .17: typed manuscript by Lucretia Blankenburg of an address she gave upon receipt of an award, n.d.
- .18: political rally handbill for Rudolph Blankenburg; it indicates that his brother-in-law, Channing Longshore, was to speak at the rally on his behalf, n.d.
- .19: sonnet and watercolor image given to Lucretia Blankenburg by the Young Voters' League, 1935
- .20: Pioneer Woman medal in case awarded to Lucretia Blankenburg posthumously by the General Federation of Women's Clubs; 1941
- .21: clippings re: the Longshore and Blankenburg families (obituaries of Thomas Longshore and Lucretia Blankenburg, and a Golden Anniversary announcement for the Blankenburgs with photograph)
- .22: photographs: cabinet card images of: Hannah Longshore, c. 1875 (2 copies, 1 large, 1 small); Hannah Longshore, c. 1865; Thomas Longshore, c. 1865 (2 images, 1 is a bust portrait taken from the other, a three-quarter, seated image); Thomas Longshore, 1889; Jane V. Myers, M.D., Hannah's sister, as a young woman, n.d.; Jane V. Myers as an elderly woman, n.d.; Channing Longshore, Hannah's son, as a young man, n.d. (2 copies); Lucretia Longshore Blankenburg, Hannah's daughter, as a young woman, n.d.; L.L. Blankenburg as a middle-aged woman, n.d.; Christmas postcard with photo of L.L. Blankenburg as an elderly woman, 1935; Rudolph Blankenburg as a young man, n.d.; R. Blankenburg as an elderly man, n.d. (There is also an etching of this image); R. Blankenburg at his farm with farm workers and hay wagon in front of barn, n.d.; chicken yard at Blankenburg farm, n.d.; Channing Longshore, Rudolph Blankenburg, and Julia Blankenburg as a child on the Blankenburg farm in NJ, n.d., family in the garden of the Blankenburg home in Logan Square, Philadelphia (includes Thomas and Hannah Longshore, Lucretia and Rudolf Blankenburg and two unidentified nieces.)
- .23: daguerrotypes: Hannah Longshore and daughter Lucretia as a child, c. 1852; Thomas Longshore, n.d.; Samuel Myers (Hannah's father) and Channing

Longshore as a child (Hannah's son), n.d.

.24: diploma: awarded to Channing Longshore from the Philadelphia University of Medicine and Surgery in 1873

.25: diploma (honorary): awarded to Lucretia Blankenburg from Temple University in 1933