The new Center for Black Culture, the CBC, was announced this past summer. The CBC will be located on the first floor of the Rush Building at 30 N 33rd Street right off of Lancaster Walk. The Rush Building will also be home to the Student Center for Diversity and Inclusion in which the CBC will work in close partnership with.

The Center for Black Culture is currently under the leadership of Interim Director, Shardé Johnson. The CBC will serve as a hub of information, activity, and community for Black students, faculty, staff, alumni, and allies. The center aims to increase knowledge of the people, histories, and cultures of the African diaspora and its many contributions to the world.

Programs and services offered through the CBC will be open to members of the Drexel community who want to engage with and gain a greater understanding of the Black experience.

We hope to welcome you to the Center for Black Culture as one of our newest Dragons!
